What is the MCS?

The Microgeneration Certification Scheme is the quality mark for the renewable sector and ensures certified organisations install certified products to the highest standards every time.

The Microgeneration Certification Scheme

The Microgeneration Certification Scheme is an internationally recognised quality assurance scheme that was launched in 2008 and has support from the Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC). MCS certifies products and installers to a set of high quality standards, covering a range of renewable technologies.

Becoming an MCS Certified installation company shows your customers that you have been independently certified to a set of high quality standards and are installing independently assessed and certified products.

Being MCS Certified allows you to offer your customers financial incentives including the Renewable Heat Incentive (RHI) and Feed in Tariffs (FIT's), whilst also showing that your organisation operates to the highest quality standards and by being a member of RECC, consumers are protected from miss-selling or misleading organisations.

What technologies are covered?

- Air Source Heat Pumps
- Ground Source Heat Pumps
- Solar Assisted Heat Pumps
- Solar Photovoltaics
- Solar Thermal
- Wind Turbines
- Biomass
- Micro CHP

Renewable Heat Incentive (RHI)

The Renewable Heat Incentive rewards property owners who have renewable heat technologies installed on their properties.

The Renewable Heat Incentive covers technologies including Air Source Heat Pumps, Ground Source Heat Pumps, Biomass Boilers and Solar Thermal.

Feed in Tariffs (FIT's)

The Feed in Tariffs offer a financial incentive to property owners who have electricity generating renewable technologies installed on their properties.

The Feed in Tariffs cover technologies including Solar PV, Wind Turbines and Micro CHP and have been hugely successful since their introduction.

Green Deal

The Green Deal launched in 2013 and offers property owners the ability to install energy efficiency improvements at no upfront cost, using savings made on their energy bills to pay off the Green Deal finance. There are a range of renewable technologies approved as measures on the Green Deal.

MCS Installers have already met some of the requirements of the Green Deal and at Easy MCS we provide the additional requirements as part of the MCS Certification Support and Ongoing Support services we offer.

MCS Accreditation Support
